Apple's "Mac" trademark officially disapproved by the U.S. Trademark office. We're sure that most of you remember when Apple trademarked the term "Mac". Well, the United States trademark office has officially decided to disapprove the trademark. The USPTO says that the trademark is "likely to cause confusion" and "seriously undermines" the name of Intel's Mac systems. The "Mac" trademark is registered on March 19, 1998 and is currently assigned with document number 27814941. "The matter is closed," a spokesperson from the Trademark Office said. All of this isn't that surprising, as there was a battle with Intel over the naming of their ultra-cheap Windows computers, originally branded as "Clones" (though later renamed as Intel® Compatible). Intel recently filed another trademark application with the USPTO for this, so we can expect some fireworks at some point in the future.Q: Define session in configuration file How do I have a session defined in my configuration file using the Symfony2 annotations? Two bikers escaping a massacre by members of the Bandidos and the Hells Angels on Saturday night in Paris had to be rushed to a hospital for treatment of their wounds, including the loss of an eye, after being chased by a gang of motorcycle-riding marauders in a suburb south of Paris. "One of my friends died during the attack. I don't know if it was a Hells Angel or a biker, but it doesn't matter," said one of the victims, who didn't want to be named because he feared retaliation from the gangs. The attack, which took place around 7:30 p.m. on Saturday in Garges-lès-Gonesse, a suburb 15 km from the French capital, was spurred by an earlier attack on a night club nearby which left three people dead and many others injured, said a police source, who said the victims included "dozens of people." While the latter attack occurred at the Babylon club, the main target of Saturday's attack was a gathering of about 30 bikers, mainly members of the Bandidos. The source said Garges-lès-Gonesse, which is next to Bois Guillaume, a nearby forest, has long been known as a hangout for drug dealers and other unsavory elements. About 120 police officers and dogs were deployed in the suburb, a security official said, as well as ambulances and fire trucks. CCTV images from a security camera and cell phone videos that circulated on social media appeared to show several bikers fleeing from the scene of the attack with their faces, and sometimes entire bodies, covered in blood. In one video clip, bikers were seen trying to take refuge in a wooded area located just next to a soccer field. "More than
